

PHI THETA KAPPA
HONOR SOCIETY

Dr. Lynn Tincher-Ladner

As the President and CEO of Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, Dr. Lynn Tincher-Ladner spends her time connecting many of the nation's hardest-working college students to life-changing scholarships and family-sustaining employment. She tells her children that it's "the best job on the planet." It's also a busy job. On most days, you'll find Lynn serving as the champion of both community colleges and community college students, using data collected from her innovative research to tell their stories and to advocate for the support of remarkable students and quality institutions of higher learning.

Although an introvert, Lynn's passion and position have established her as an inspired speaker with engagements crisscrossing the country: she frequently presents her state-of-the-art statistics on student success at national conferences and regularly speaks at college convocations and commencements. A self-described "stemist," her educational background includes a Ph.D. in Community College Leadership from Mississippi State University and both bachelor's and master's degrees in mathematics from the University of Southern Mississippi.

Lynn's unique perspective might also be traced back to what she refers to as "an advanced degree from the school of hard knocks." She recalls entering the workforce in 1990 when REM's "Shiny Happy People" was the Number One song. Long before promotion into her current role, Lynn began as a waitress at Shoney's, followed by upgrades as a high school teacher; graduate assistant; community college math, chemistry, and physics instructor; computer programmer; database administrator; institutional researcher; and university faculty member for mathematics and operations research.

Lynn believes the Society's hallmark of service extends to the Headquarters staff as well as PTK members, so she is honored to serve on the national boards for the College Promise Campaign and the Center for Community College Student Engagement. She serves on the Executive Council of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools -- Commission on Colleges, and serves on the Board of Directors for the American Association of Community Colleges and the Rural Community College Alliance.
